

MUSIKUSS ANNOUNCES "KEINE DIAGNOSE" - A RESPONSE TO JAY RIDDLE'S "ANNI THE DUCK FILES"

October 9, 2026

Hamburg, 2026-10-09 - musikuss announces "Keine Diagnose," the next single from the Subtext series and a response to "Anni the Duck Files," the multi-part YouTube series by Jay Riddle. The German-language hip-hop track will be released on October 16, 2026 on all major streaming platforms; the official video is already available on YouTube.

A DISCLAIMER IS NOT A METHOD

The series sets out to correct the public picture of Anni the Duck - and along the way turns to another person's health. That is what "Keine Diagnose" takes issue with. The song argues that a disclaimer at the start and a verdict at the end frame hours of speculation: clips cut for effect, a specialist's careful "can't rule it out" turned into a cause, and a person reduced to a medical file she never chose to share.

The hook sums it up: "Keine Diagnose" stands at the beginning as a disclaimer, "Case Closed" at the end - and in between, nobody asks the person concerned.

"The song does not take sides in the conflict itself," musikuss says. "It is about the method: you cannot announce that you are not making a diagnosis and then spend hours doing exactly that."

PART OF SUBTEXT

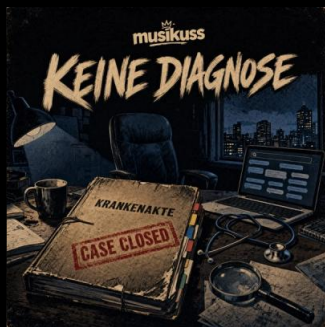

Subtext is a series of German-language hip-hop singles about public figures and online controversies. The lyrics name no one and stick to publicly documented facts - the context is public, and the listener connects the dots. Earlier releases include "Linksradikal," "Antisemit," and "Requiem für 7 vs. Wild."

AVAILABILITY

"Keine Diagnose" will be available from October 16, 2026 on Spotify, Apple Music, YouTube Music, and all other major streaming platforms. The video can be watched now on the musikuss YouTube channel.

ABOUT MUSIKUSS

musikuss is the alias for AI-assisted music productions by a Hamburg-based musician and producer. Lyrics are written by hand; AI serves as an instrument for arrangement and production, followed by manual editing, mixing, and mastering. A step-by-step look at the workflow: The Process.

KEINE DIAGNOSE

musikuss

Type: Single

Release date: October 16, 2026

Genres: Hip-Hop

PRESS CONTACT

Mirko Schubert

press@musikuss-records.com

+49 174 6057248